This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

Usage guidelines

Google is proud to partner with libraries to digitize public domain materials and make them widely accessible. Public domain books belong to the public and we are merely their custodians. Nevertheless, this work is expensive, so in order to keep providing this resource, we have taken steps to prevent abuse by commercial parties, including placing technical restrictions on automated querying.

We also ask that you:

+ Make non-commercial use of the files We designed Google Book Search for use by individuals, and we request that you use these files for personal, non-commercial purposes.
+ Refrain from automated querying Do not send automated queries of any sort to Google's system: If you are conducting research on machine translation, optical character recognition or other areas where access to a large amount of text is helpful, please contact us. We encourage the use of public domain materials for these purposes and may be able to help.
+ Maintain attribution The Google "watermark" you see on each file is essential for informing people about this project and helping them find additional materials through Google Book Search. Please do not remove it.
+ Keep it legal Whatever your use, remember that you are responsible for ensuring that what you are doing is legal. Do not assume that just because we believe a book is in the public domain for users in the United States, that the work is also in the public domain for users in other countries. Whether a book is still in copyright varies from country to country, and we can't offer guidance on whether any specific use of any specific book is allowed. Please do not assume that a book's appearance in Google Book Search means it can be used in any manner anywhere in the world. Copyright infringement liability can be quite severe.

PREFACE.

MY thanks are due to the CARDIFF LIBRARY COMMITTEE for the loan of these two volumes of The Taylors Cussion; to Messrs. BLADES, EAST & BLADES for their work in photographing; and to Dr. HENRY OWEN, to whose accurate and scholarly notes, in his edition of Owen's Pembrokeshire, I am indebted for much of the information herein.

INTRODUCTION.

THE MS. copy of The Taylors Cussion, of which this volume is a reproduction, was in 1784 in the possession of Richard Gough; it bears his name and the above date on the title-page. At the sale of the Gough MSS., this copy, together with other volumes, was purchased by Richard Heber.[1] Later, several of the Heber MSS. passed, again by purchase, into the hands of Sir Thomas Phillipps; and when in turn the latter's MSS. were put up for sale, Cardiff Library happily acquired The Taylors Cussion, together with several other small MS. books of George Owen's, all more or less interesting.

The readers of what may not inaptly be described as George Owen's Common Place Book, will hardly require to have its beauties pointed out, but they may reasonably desire to know something of the author's history. I refer more especially to readers living in England or America, for I take it for granted that all our countrymen and women are well acquainted with the life of George Owen, who was not only the most noted Lord Marcher of Cemaes since the days of Martin of the Towers, first conqueror and lord of Cemaes, but of all the Lord Marchers on the Welsh borders. Those who are the happy possessors of his History of Pembrokeshire (so ably edited by his namesake, Dr. Henry Owen), or who have seen the sketch of his life by Mr. D. Lleufer Thomas in the Dictionary of National Biography, or who have seen the still older, but very inferior, edition of his History of Pembrokeshire, by Fenton,[2] published in the Cambrian Register of 1796, will know something of his greatness.

In many respects George Owen was a most remarkable man. He was indefatigable in the collection of information and statistics of all kinds: all was grist that came to his mill. Every item of antiquity, geology, geography, history, and pedigrees interested him. An Edinburgh Reviewer calls him the father of English geology.[1] The map of Pembrokeshire in the sixth edition of Camden's Britannia is his work, and is inscribed "Georgius Owen D[ominus] Kemeis descripsit." During the period before and after the invasion of the Spanish Armada he was vice-admiral for the counties of Pembroke and Cardigan, and was requested by the Government of that day to send accurate information to them with regard to Milford Haven[2] and all the ports of Pembrokeshire capable of being defended against a feared second invasion of the Spaniards. This undoubtedly gave rise to his map of Pembrokeshire, and to this is due the care with which all the creeks and their indentations are so accurately drawn, hence the superiority in that respect of this map over all previous maps of Pembrokeshire. He was evidently of a stay-at-home disposition, as we see from his Dialogue of the government of Wales,[3] where he writes "ffor unto us y^t^ have o^r^ quiet rest at home, one journey here-"hence to the Counsail of the Marches, or the Citty of London "seemeth unto us most grievous & painfull, so that if the paine that "you (Barthol) have voluntarily taken upon you, were enforced unto "us, we should more complaine, thereof, then Ovid doth of his "banishm^t^ in his dolefull workes De tristibus."

[1] Rees, Beauties of Wales, Vol. 18.

[2] Fenton, in 1796, possessed many of George Owen's MSS., and contemplated publishing them.

ANCESTRY.

Among the knights who came over with William the Conqueror was Martin of the Towers, so named from the three towers blazoned on his banner and shield, and not because he came from Tours,[4] in Touraine, or any other place called Tours. His name still survives in Combe Martin, in Devonshire, where he first settled in this country. In 1088 or 1089 he landed with his followers at Fishguard in South Wales, and conquered the Cantref (Hundred) of Caithmais (Cemaes, or Kemeys) in Pembrokeshire.

[2] The description of Milford Haven in this work was written in 1595, and in 1598 he drew up a memorandum of the places fit to be fortified, but the only result of the author's labours was the unfinished blockhouses at Dale and Angle.

[4] The crest of Tours, the town, has towers of a different design to those of Martin. Besides, Mr. Leo Culleton, solemnly affirms to me, that no town in France had a crest anterior to 1200 A.D. We may, therefore, once and for all, dismiss the myth about Sir Martin having come from Tours in Touraine. It probably arose through confusion of Sir Martin of the Towers with Saint Martin of Tours, who lived 316 to 400 A.D., owing to the resemblance between S^r^ (seigneur) and S^t^ (saint), and to the fact that Sir Martin had towers (tours) on his banner.

One of the young Norman knights in Martin's train was named Lucas de Hoda, and his grandson, Richard de Hoda, married Ales,[1] the great, great, great granddaughter of Martin of the Towers; they had a son named Philip, who was accordingly of Norman descent both on the father's and the mother's side.

Now this Philip de Hoda married a lady of pure Welsh descent, viz., Nesta, the great, great, great granddaughter of Rhys ap Tewdwr, prince of South Wales, whose wife Gwladys was daughter and heiress of Rhiwallon, prince of Powys, and niece of Bleddyn, prince of Powys, her father's successor, and first cousin to Prince Cadwgan, Lord of Cardigan from 1094 to 1109.

George Owen's father, William, was directly descended in the male line from Lucas de Hoda. He married Elizabeth Herbert, who was descended from William, Earl of Pembroke, the first Welshman that was ennobled. William Owen was the first in his family to follow the English fashion of having surnames, and to assume the name of Owen. He lived to a ripe old age, dying, on the 9th of March, 1574, when he was 105 years old, and leaving behind him his son and heir, George Owen, who thus writes on the matter: "For "experience whereof my dearest ancestor at his death was accounted "to have lyved 105 years, and was at his latter dayes lustie of body "and always in health, well able to travell and dayly used to walke a "good swift pase, 4, 5, or 6 myles a morning for his pleasure; and lesse "then six yeares before his death, he, taking his journey from the "towne of Pembroke towards his house in the country, began his "journey a foote, willing his man to bring his horse after him, for that "his horse was not then taken (and indeed was not that daye), he "having began his journey a foote was forced soe to ende the same and "come to his house by one of the clocke, being 20 miles; he carried "all his teeth with him to the grave, and a fewe yeares before his "death would eat a handfull of nuttes, shells and all; he was the "yongest of his ancestours that died the last two descents before him. "My mother, alsoe, yet living (God grant it long[2]), and two other gentle-"women of the same parish, all three in perfect memory, can reckon [1] Owen's Pembrokeshire has Ales; the pedigree in the Baronia de Kemeys (pub. 1859) has Nesta, probably a confusion with "Nesta the wife of Philip." As there are other clerical errors in the same pedigree, I prefer to follow Owen's Pembrokeshire.

[2] His mother died in 1603.

"between them at least 260 yeares, soe helthful is the ayre and soyle."[1] William Owen was buried at Nevern the day after his death.[2]

BIRTHPLACE.

George Owen was born at Henllys, in the parish of Nevern, near Newport, Pembrokeshire, in 1552, and died there on 26th August, 1613. It was from Meredydd (who died 1188), ap Gryffydd ap Rhys ap Tewdwr, who lived at Henllys, that the property descended to Nesta, the wife of Philip, son of Richard de Hoda, and so on in the direct male line to George Owen. Thus he could truly write of Henllys, as he did: "It did not appear that any other family or person than my ancestors had ever lived there." The Owens continued to live at Henllys till the death of William Owen, the great grandson of George Owen, in 1721. Some time between this and the end of the century Henllys was pulled down, and there is now only part of the foundations, overgrown with grass, that can with difficulty be traced.

Fenton writes of Henllys in 1811: "As the venerable mansion "that once occupied this site, long abandoned as the family residence, "and gradually stripped of its ancient consequence, has of late years "given place to a modern farmhouse, I must leave a former possessor "to give the description of it. 'The house of Henllys, where the "Lord of Cemaes resides, with its demesne, is in effect an island in dry "land, for that the same is round about (one little space left as it were "for a bridge), compassed with deep vallies and steep hills to ascend to "the same. It is seated on a bank, having a precipitous and woody "descent on the south towards the river Nevern, that runneth at its "foot and lyeth in the midst of the lord's demesne lands. The house, "which is chiefly of the age of King Henry the Seventh, is built of "stone covered with tile, to which is belonging a stable of seven bays "long, and a barn of thirteen bays, besides all suitable outhouses, "buildings, curtilages, gardens and orchards. The name in Welsh "implies old court or palace, and is of ancient descent to the now "owners; yet although for divers hundred yeeres the same by "undoubted evidences appeareth to be in his progenitors, the first "originall doth not by any matter appear how or when the same first "came, or that ever anie other family or person than his ancestors "owned it.' . . . The hospitality of this house was proverbial, and its "good cheer carried on upon an immense scale, if we estimate it by the "accounts handed down to us of the dimensions of its oven and its "brewing vats."

The views from the site of the old house are very lovely, especially the one looking over the picturesque valley to the South on to the Precellies with their ever varying light and shade.

THE BARONY OF CEMAES.

In Vol. xi, pt. 1, of Y Cymmrodor (1890, p. 43), the editor, Mr. Egerton Phillimore, quoting Professor John Rhys, points out that "the spelling Cemmaes, or Cemaes, is not genuine," and "that the "word cannot possibly contain the element maes (a field) is sufficiently "proved by the fact, that if it were so derived, it would necessarily be "written - mais in Old-Welsh, and - maes in Middle-Welsh documents." Mr. Phillimore is evidently quite unaware that the spelling in one of the earliest documents is "Cathmais," "Cath" (Lat. caedes) signifying slaughter and "mais" a field. This is the most probable name for the district, as there was undoubtedly one big battle fought there, when the Glamorgan Princes set forth in battle array to attack Prince Tewdwr, then living in St. Dogmaels in Cemaes. They hoped to catch him unawares, but Prince Tewdwr was quite prepared, and defeated them with "great slaughter." Cemaes was also harried by the Danes at least three times, and by the Saxons. The Romans also have left traces of their occupation of this region.

The Barony of Cemaes had lapsed on the death of William Martin, in 1326, without male heir of his body, to his nephew, Lord Audley, son of his sister Joan. Lord Audley already possessed a seat in Parliament, so that the seat of the Lords of Cemaes in Parliament lapsed.[1] In 1392 the last Lord Audley of that family died, and the barony passed through his sister to Sir John Touchet, who also took the title of Audley. The Audleys held the barony till 1497, when James, Lord Audley, was beheaded for taking part in the insurrection of Perkin Warbeck.

In 1534 his son John was restored to his estates, but William Owen, of Henllys, claimed and won the barony of Cemaes in right of [1] Or as George Owen expressed it "was drowned."

Ales, daughter of Nicholas Martin, lord of Cemaes. After a nineteen years' suit the release of the barony was granted and signed, being dated 21st August, 1543.

Among the Bronwydd MSS., in George Owen's handwriting, is "A bref note of the order of the pourchase (i.e., acquisition) of the "Lordship of Kemes by William Owen from John Lord Awdeley, "Mary his wiffe and George Awdeley his sonne and heire," from which it appears that the plaintiff after winning his suit proceeded with due legal caution. The proceedings were:—

1. A recovery suffered by the defendant in the Court of Pembroke "to cutt off all estates tayle if any were there."

2. A bargain and sale of the barony to the plaintiff "under the "hand & grete seale" of the defendant with a condition of redemption on payment of ccc.li. (£300).

3. A release to the plaintiff of all the right and title of the defendant and his son.

4. A grant of further assurance between the same parties "by "obligacion in the some of twoe thousande poundes."

5. A covenant by the defendant "in consideracion of lxxxli "xl oxen xx kyne & xx pieces of freeses of Kemes makinge" paid by the plaintiff to make further assurance of the Barony.

6. A release of the barony dated 21st August, 1543.

7. Letters from the defendant "under his greate seale of armes "to all Stewardes Bayliffes & other officers gentellmen yomen sutors "freeholders and tenantes" in the barony, charging them to "obbey "the said William Owen as theire very Lord and right owner of the "said barony."

8. A fine "with relese and duble warranty" levied by the defendant and Mary his wife at "the sessiones holden at Pembroke."

9. A "recovery by doble voucher" in the same sessions (the demandant being one "John ab Owen ab David ap Gwillim").

The "prooffes" that Kemes is a Lordship Marcher are to be found in the Baronia de Kemeys, published from a MS. at Bronwydd (the home of the present Lord Marcher) in the handwriting of George Owen. The baronial courts for trying actions of slander and for recovery of small debts were held at College, Eglwyswrw, presided over by the Steward of the barony, and at Newport (presided over by the Mayor), until the middle of the eighteenth century. The boundaries of the lord's waste, containing some 25,000 acres, are still perambulated with much state and ceremony every seven years, and the faithful burgesses of Newport still present to the lord the names of three persons qualified to serve in the office of mayor of that ancient borough, and the one selected by him is duly sworn in before the ensuing Court of Pembrokeshire Quarter Sessions. George Owen once filed a bill in the Court of the Marches against the burgesses of Newport for not presenting a mayor.

LIFE.

At the time when George Owen lived, the Welsh race of Tudors being on the English throne, Welshmen came more prominently to the front, figuring at Court and amongst the statesmen, soldiers, ecclesiastics, lawyers, merchant princes and literati of that period, the influences of the Renaissance and the Reformation having given an impetus to letters.

He came, as we have seen, on one side of good old Welsh stock; on the other side he was descended from a singularly wise and humane man, Martin of the Towers, who, making an almost bloodless conquest of Cemaes, by his tact and goodness of heart won over the inhabitants, and instead of bringing fire and sword in his train, as did most of the Norman knights, granted the inhabitants leases of their houses and lands, so that some of the oldest Welsh stock in South Wales, at the present day, is to be found in the Lordship of Cemaes.

The Norman blood, of Martin of the Towers and his knight Lucas de Hoda, was too strong in the veins of George Owen for one to be able to regard him as a patriotic Welshman. One would look on him rather as a devotee of his county, for he had a strong, undying love for Pembrokeshire, was ever proud that it rejoiced in the name of "Little England," and gloried in telling how the Pembrokeshire men had "beaten the Welsh as they had also beaten the Irish." In the same way he hated the Carmarthenshire men, accusing them of stealing the lordships of Laugharne, Llanstiphan, St. Cleers, Llandovror[1]

[1] See Owen's Pembrokeshire, p. 206, n. 4: "it would appear that this lordship was identical with that of Oysterlow."

(Oysterlow), Kidwely and Llanymdhfry (Llandovery) from Pembrokeshire. These encroachments[1] of Carmarthenshire on the former boundaries of Pembrokeshire ever rankled in the mind of George Owen, and in one MS. he attributes it to the influence of Sir Thomas Jones, Knight of the Parliament for Pembrokeshire, who was a mere Carmarthenshire man, and only held land in Pembrokeshire for the life of his wife, who was a persona grata to Henry VIII.

There is no record as to where George Owen was educated, though his writings show him to have been a man of considerable learning. He probably owed his love of literature and learning to his father, whom he dutifully enrols among the worthies of Pembrokeshire, and who must have been a remarkable man, as he was eighty-four when George Owen was born, was from fifty-five to seventy-five years of age when he was fighting the case for winning the barony, and must have been nearly one hundred years when he began to cultivate his son's literary tastes.

On George Owen's attaining his majority, his father granted to him absolutely on the 4th October, 1571, the castle of Newport and the baronial rights of the Lordship of Cemaes. For twenty years of his life he was in conflict with the Council of the Marches as to his rights of wardship and imprisonment. Proceedings under a writ of quo warranto were taken against him to examine into the question of the jura regalia claimed by him in his barony, and commissions sat at Newport in 1588 and 1589 to take evidence. Indeed, it seems that the "Lord of Kemeys" was at one time placed under arrest in his own castle of Newport.

In 1573 he was admitted member of Barnard's Inn, but apparently he always lived in Pembrokeshire, probably owing to his marriage and to the death of his father the following year. He was High Sheriff for Pembrokeshire in 1587 and in 1602. He was exceedingly active during the time of the Spanish Armada alarm, and some of his letters written at that time are still preserved in the Calendar of State Papers. In spite of the busy life he led, he found time to examine the records in London, Ludlow (the seat of the Council of the Marches), and elsewhere. For example, we find him in London on the 29th of May,

[1] The Lordships of Llanstiphan, Usterlows (Oysterlow, or Llandovror) and Laugharne were withdrawn from Pembrokeshire by S. 117 of 34 and 35 Henry VIII, c. 26, and became part of the county of Carmarthen.

1589, where in the Exchequer he searched the "Booke of Domedsdaye" for matters pertaining to the Lordship of Cemaes and for the name of Martin; also certain Rolls: "the roles of Quo waranto for hereford "there in Edward the first tyme" and "certen rowles called Ragman "Rowles wherein is conteyned many libertyes" . . . . "also after I hadd "searched thei towld me & shewed me diuerse Recordes particular for "wales & hadd a grete canvas bagg full of Records for south wales "wherein were bundells Indorsedd com' penbr' / cardigan Carmardyn / "which I am promised to have the pervsall of". . . . "vltimo maij 1589 "I saw the Booke in the Coorte of wardes of the welshe tenures in the "wch there ys nothinge but of northwales y^t ys a very faire booke in "parchm^t" . . . . "also that daye I hadd som pervsall of the Redd "booke."[1] He was also plaintiff in four different suits in the Star Chamber with reference to his attempts to maintain the ancient rights of the Lords of Kemes.

George Owen married, in 1573, Elizabeth, daughter and co-heiress of William Phillips of Picton, Pembrokeshire, by whom he had ten children, the eldest and only surviving son being Alban, who succeeded him as lord of Cemaes.

About his second marriage there is some confusion. Fenton states in his Pembrokeshire (p. 563), from a MS. alleged to have been written by George Owen himself, that his second wife was "Ann, "daughter of John Gwillim, a French gentleman of Norman descent." But according to a pedigree signed by Owen himself, his second wife was "Ancred,[2] daughter of William Obiled, of Carmarthen, gent." Obiled is, however, described as a "tinker" in a pedigree of the Henllys family dated 1677, preserved at the College of Arms. According to this pedigree, Owen had seven children by her, but Owen himself states that there were twelve children of his second marriage.

This marriage with Ancred is corroborated by the Inquisitio Post Mortem of George Owen, in which the jurors further say that "certain "lands were granted by George Owen by deed dated 18th August, 1613, "to John Owen of Trecwn and Henry Bowen of Cilgwyn to the use of "George Owen and Ancred his wife and the survivor for life, with "remainder to the use of their son Thomas Owen and the heirs of his "body, with remainder to the use of their son Rhys Owen, his heirs "and assigns." By Ancred George Owen had five sons: George, the York Herald, Evan, Chancellor of St. David's, William, Thomas, and Rhys. The jurors further state that George Owen died on the 26th day of August last (1613), and that Alban Owen was at the date of that Inquisition of the age of thirty-three years. They also further state that "Ancred is yet alive."

Alban was the only son by the first wife who lived to maturity; there were also several daughters. According to this Inquisitio Post Mortem taken at the Guildhall, Haverfordwest, on the 4th day of May, 1614, Alban Owen, his son and heir apparent, was on the 24th September, 1596, betrothed to Lettice, daughter of Johanna and her late husband William Mercer deceased, and George Owen then covenanted to grant certain houses and lands, etc., to their use for either or both their lives and then to their sons successively in tail male with ultimate remainder to the right heirs of George Owen, "before "the Feast of All Saints then next.". . . . "The jurors find that this "marriage was duly solemnized and George Owen performed his "covenant by a deed of feoffment dated the 24th October, 1596, to "the effect that (1) lands at the Bury, formerly the grange of the "Castle of Newport in the occupation of various persons . . . . and "(2) the manor house or dairy, called The Court, in the parish of "Eglwyswrw, with lands extending West of Pencelly Forest, by Berllan "to Pencelly Fawr, thence by Blaen Palley Vychan to the Queen's "highway, leading from the church of St. David, at Llantood, to "Bwlch y Garreglwyd, thence by Gwaun y cyver to George Owen's "new hedge at Vroches," were to be held for the use of Alban Owen and his wife for life and to their sons successively in tail male, "the "Castle and Town of Newport and the Barony or Lordship of Kemes, "and the manors of Eglwyswrw, Newcastle, Redwalls, Bayvill and "Moylgrove, parcel of the barony," devolving on Alban on the death of his father. The pedigree attached to the Baronia de Kemes states that Alban married in 1591 Joan, daughter of William Bradshaw of St. Dogmaels; possibly Joan died early and Lettice may have been his second wife.

According to the same Post Mortem Inquisition before, among others, William Bradshaw of St. Dogmaels, Esquire, the jurors present, "that George Owen was in his lifetime seised in his demesne,

"as of fee, of the Country, Barony or Lordship of Kemes, the Castle "and Town of Newport, with a close called The Park, the manors of "Newcastle, Bayvill, Eglwyswrw, and Moylgrove, Penkelly Forest, "certain lands called Henllys Ucha, Henllys Issa, and Henllys "Vorgan; and four water grain mills called Jordan's Mill, Newport "Mill, Moylgrove Mill, and Velindre Marchog Mill, all parcel of "the Barony."

WRITINGS.

George Owen was a most prolific writer, his best known work being his History of Pembrokeshire.

The Taylors Cussion should rank next in point of interest.

The Baronia de Kemes is an interesting treatise on "Lordshippes Marchers" in general, and on Kemes in particular, together with "Prooffes that Kemes is an anciente Lordshippe Marcher," with the addition of various charters and documents relating to the barony, and the proceedings (taken from the Record Office) in the suit against Nicholas, last Lord Audley, and Martin (temp. Richard II). One of the customs of a Lordship Marcher in ancient time in Wales was, that when a tenant died intestate the Lord Marcher inherited his goods; George Owen writes: "my father had a suite before the Counsell of the "M'ches against James ap Rees Dauid ap Nott for a cowe of the "goodes of a man of Kemes that dyed intestate and grounded his title "upon the custome."

The Baronia de Kemeys, and, earlier still, the Cartas Antiquas de Kemeys have both been published; but there are still many unpublished MSS., the principal one probably being the Vairdre Book, of which there is a copy at Bronwydd, copied by John Owen of Berllan in 1684 from the one written by George Owen. In it is a treatise on marl, finished 12th November, 1599. It is divided into twelve chapters, the subjects being: Marl, what it is, its varieties, its antiquity, and when first used, where, and in what places and countries it is found, how to find it and by what signs and tokens, how to know it when it is found, what is the best marl, the best season for putting it on the land, how it should be dug and spread on the land, of what profit it is to the land, with what land it best agrees, and for what land it is noisome and prejudicial. The Vairdre Book also contains an elaborate and detailed account of the barony, entitled, "Extentum totius Baroniae de Kemes, 1594"; a list of the ecclesiastical benefices in the county (of Pembroke), divided into deaneries, with the names of patrons, collected in 1594; the surveys of the Manors of Ambleston and Riccaston, made on the attainder of Sir John Perrott (in 1592, when George Owen was one of the Commissioners appointed by the Crown to survey his property, and who was also a kinsman of Owen's); and a list of Drake's ships in the Armada year, with the names of the captains and the numbers of the crews.

Many of the smaller MSS. are also exceedingly interesting. In one Owen notes in the villages immediately North of the Precellies the enormous influx of Irish settlers, so that in some villages every third house was inhabited by Irish, in others every fifth house. Consequently there were many distilleries. He also, in another, notes the valley called, in Welsh, Cwm Cerwyn (a cauldron), or Cwm Carw (a stag), adding that either name would be applicable, as there are plenty of stags in the valley, and also plenty of cauldrons, since nearly all the Irish have stills for whiskey. In another MS. he dwells on the excellence of this whiskey, the commonest, which was good, being sold for tenpence a gallon, and the best, which was quite equal to the best brand in London, at eighteenpence the gallon. This Cwm Cerwyn or Cwm Carw is the more interesting as it is mentioned in the Mabinogion in the tale of Olwen and Kilhwch, when King Arthur, overlord of Britain, rides through Cwm Cerwyn with many of his followers to hunt the "Twrch Trwyth"—supposed to have been some horrible monster; whilst in a grant to the Abbey of St. Dogmaels in the time of Henry I, it is mentioned as Cwm Carw, and to this day it is known by both names, though both stags and stills have long vanished from the valley, which lies between Carningli and Crymmych.

There are also among the small MS. volumes in Cardiff Library some volumes of pedigrees and a volume containing the arms of Welsh gentry. Among the State Papers at the Record Office are reports to the Council by him in his capacity of Deputy Vice-Admiral and Deputy Lieutenant; and précis of enquiries held by him on Admiralty and other matters. In all his work, both official and literary, there is abundant evidence of his wonderful industry and business capacity.

[1] Lansdown MSS., lxxii, f. 63.

Owen's MSS. are now scattered, some being at the British Museum, Cardiff, and elsewhere. He had three distinct handwritings: this copy of the Taylors Cussion is in what may be styled his best handwriting, and was written chiefly in his prime. Probably as he grew older his writing became less perfect; in fact, after 1603 there is little trace of any of his writings to be found; whether he became an invalid, or what happened, one knows not.

In the Beaufort Progress (p. cci, 1684), on the back of his map, "George Owen deceased" is described as "a singular lover and "industrious Collector of Antiquities, as the learned Mr. Camden "writeth in the Description of Pembrokeshire. He was owner of "the Barony of Keimes in the sayd County which as the sayd "Mr. Camden there noteth consisteth of twenty knights ffees, and "twenty-six Parishes, over and above the three Borroughs of Newport, "Fishguard, and Saint Dogmaels. By this Mr. Owen's Industrie "the Printed Mappe of the s^d County was as you may see in the "s^d Mr. Camden's descrip^co composed."

In the Taylors Cussion one finds various additions after the death of George Owen, as, for example, on folio 53 there is a footnote regarding the omission of "Slebech" from the list of freeholders and householders of the different parishes in the county of Pembroke initialled "R. F." (Richard Fenton), conclusively proving that for a time Fenton had this MS. in his possession.

On folio 13, "20 & 21 Sir John Phillipps Baronett 1622 & 1623" is added to the list of the Sheriffs of Carmarthen, the date being ten years later than the death of George Owen; on folio 17 the list of the Pembrokeshire Sheriffs is continued from 1613 to 1622 in this same hand, probably that of his son Alban.

On folio 97 there are also notes in again another hand.

On folio 24, vol. 2, we find an extract from the Domesday Book giving a carucate of land as 100 acres, that is 6 × 20 (120 acres), or fifteen acres making a bovate and eight bovates a carucate. This measurement is also given by Dr. Hodgkin in his Political History of England, who quotes Prof. Vinogradoff's (of Oxford) Villainage in England.

One can find no fitter ending for this short account of George Owen than the following lines taken from an epitaph upon him by

R. H. (Robert Hollond) reproduced in Owen's Pembrokeshire, Part 3:—

He Justice was neere fforty yeeres

The Taylors cussion

The taylors cussion made of shreades of diuers peeces hath a patch, So he that all this volume reades of diuers things shall finde a snatch Therefore this booke of others all the taylors cussion do I call.

Who will in me some matters finde, my table is last, then look behinde.

The Booke to the Reader

At onte I was not brought to passe as straitye horses bridled be but I br peecemeale patched was therefore disordred as you see

Contente one man some one thinge maye thoughe many thinges he doth resist a simple thinge invented ayge but som man doth the same assert

But I ame no mans man but one my master I will never change he lyke me well and him alone I love I see no paine is strange

The maisters charge to the Booke

That thou attende I charge the harde and be at hande when I do call of all thinges else have good regarde no places strange to haunte at all for if thou once a vaginge go farewell with me thy credyte mo,

And if to send abroade I neede or somtyme lend the for a turne when that thou art dispatchyng speede see that thou home agame returne which if thou do then mayst thou looke to be my welbeloved booke

The Bookes Aunswere

Good master you shall finde mee prest and be obedient to your will to do you service with the best unto the farthest of my skill require you can no more of mee but alwaies prest and buxom bee

If you to freend me forth do lend to pleasure him do not repyne If I be stolne and so offende the fault is yours and nothinge myne therefore take heede to whome you lende least I be shent when yond offende

Whi the Armes of France is preferred by the kinge of Englande before theire aternaill rote.

The question being asked whi Edward the thirde quarteringe the armes of England wth France preferreth the armes of France before the armes of England, beinge his paternall rote, contrary to the Lawe of Armes in that pointe.

It was answered by some that allthough by lawe of armes the heire in the quartered rote, must preferre the paternall rote, yet in princes, who have the Lawe at liberty in those pointe, yt is often times used otherwise. and they use to preferre the armes of theire provinces or kingdomes yea before the worthier. for in martiall affaires Pars maior vincit meliorem and therefore kinge Edward the thirde playninge France, and naminge himselfe kinge thereof, for it was the more stronger kingdome, allthough it came by the mother side, yet he preferreth the rote in the principall parte of his escotheon. The like (as yt said) is used by kinge [illegible] the, who first preferreth the rote of Castile beinge pars maior, or greatest province of his. before his paternall rote, for of late yeares his Ancestors were obscure and of no ~~antiquity or~~ honor, but on of them beinge a knight maried with the daughter of the Counte of Hasburge, which was the first honor that his house accepted: and after ward to the rest by matrymonye. Wherefore he sholde rather have preferred the armes of Hasburge beinge the first tipe of honor, then diverse otheres wch he preferrith in his atchiu'ment. / looke for this in Monster folio

Others saye that kinge Edward the thirde first preferred the armes of England, but beinge forced to recover his right of France by armes, and seekinge aide of the lowe countreys an ansuer was made by them that they ~~were~~ hate of the house of Burgundye and ~~therefore~~ owed fealty to the kinge of France, and therefore it was not lawfull for them without periury and staining theire honor, to bere armes against the kinge of France, whert upon the said kinge Edward alteringe him selfe to be lawfull kinge of France gave the armes thereof in the chefe parte of his escothion,

Holinshed fo. 905

And then as is said he had theme wide.

Others saye that France is the more and most worthie kingdome of Europe, & most antient, and in that respecte the armes is preferred,

But see in Laries nobylytie a good reason folio wch is ~~that~~ that the two lions in the armes which the kinghe of England beareth paternally is the armes of William Conqueror which he bare as Duke of Normandy, the said Dukhy also havinge him in his ancestors but a fewe descente before, and after wards kinge Henry the second matrimyed with the heire of Guion geevinge the third Lion of like colour and forme, for the better forme the same was ameyed in pale under the other two Lions, all wch armes are the armes of Normandy & Guien, beinge but Dukhyes and not belonginge to any kingdome but when Edward the third was lawfull Inheritour of a kingdome wch of France he presumed the armes thereof (beinge the armes of a kingdome before his paternall rote beinge but the armes of a dukedome) for he never gave the armes of Englande, but the armes of Normandy, neyther is there ~~that~~ I knowe of any armes yeeth belonginge to Englande. But the same realme havinge bee subiect to diverse conquest and also descended to sedall familyes, as Brute, Lerine Colin, after the lyne of Brute extinguished, and the Dukes of Corne wall then the conquest of the Romans, then the Saxons, and emonge them to divse kingdomes, and lastly to the kinge of west Saxons, then ye Danes, and lastly William the Conqueror. It seemeth, that eche of those haue stille geven sedall rotes, accordinge to theire owne houses, so that there was no certen rote preserved for the kingdome, as hath ben for France, wch armes ~~hath~~ hath ben preserved and kept in ou blud and lynage, since the tyme of

And this maye seeme a good reason why the armes of France are preferred before the armes of England, and the like reson for the armes of the kingdome of Castile before the armes of the house Arspurge or any of Inferior rotes.

But 14 Edwardi tertij statut per se that the realme of England shold not be subiect to the realme of frauncе, allso it is especially to be noted, that from the tyme of the conquest onto the tyme of Edward the thirde kinge of frauncе there was no Duke in England, but those that were Dukedomes before, were brought to be Erldomes as Cornwall &c. And Edwarde the third reuiued some, and created others to be Dukedomes and it seemeth the same was done by William the Conqueroure, for that he him selfe beinge by discente but a duke, and beinge the armes of a duke only, wold not haue any of his subiecte to be of equall Degree with himselfe within his realme, for other wise I see no reasonne why he shold haue suppressed the ancient Dukedomes & brought them to be Erldomes.

William Conqueror gave paternally two lions and Henry Plantagenett gave one, wch were added the two first were given as Duke of Normandie, the last as Earle of Angeou yet both were holden of the Crowne of ffrauncе and they his subiecte and Homagers and therefore the same Christ subiecte rote wold not be preferred before their Bailiffs Dukes and therefore the Duke of ffrauncе Gate the pre-eminence, for that Lyons were not armes of England but of ffrauncе /

Yet likewise may yonge be said yt ye kinge Acknowlement yt yere England gate the pre-eminence before his paternall Duke beyngest Scotland was Homager to England

Allegeance the Spanish kinge giveth yt the right Corner the armes of Castile, yet he giveth the armes of Austrie, beinge his paternall Duke yeder all yt a Soueraigne of presente

The kinges of England had not peculiar Coate, to their Ancestrie but the Coates of their blood and the Royall families gave seuerall Coates, till now of late h: 7: for the Christianes relinquished sundry armes, the Saxons gave another, the Danes their owne, the house of Normandy two lyons, Plantagenett 3 lyons. Edward 7: yet for the Duke his paternall Duke yt he vsed it vnto lyons till h: the armes of England only and his Sonne after him

Anno Domi 1588 when the spaniards intended the invadinge of England these latter meetere were spread abroade as muche as ponsible the kinge of Spaine to make this kind

Postulata seu mandata regis hispanie ad regiam Anglie

Te lacto ne pergas armis defendere belgas Quas Draco eripuit quas tendantur oportet Quas pater elecutit. Jubeo te London Oellas Religio papa fas restituatur ad unguem

Responsio

Ad grata esther fient mandata Calendae

Answered thus

My belgique contrees forbid with armes for to defend my treasure with thy Drake beneth restored me to send the selfe thy father did Albert repaire they must be thy popes religion to restore in thardge gene to thee

Answere

To grecian calende these thy hestes performed all shalbe

Whi the Armes of Fraunce is presented by the kinge of Englande before theire aternall rotes.

The question being asked whi Edward the thirde quarteringe the armes of England wth Fraunce presenteth the armes of Fraunce before the armes of Englande, beinge his paternall rote, contrary to the Lawe of Armes in that pointe.

It was answered by some that although by lawe of armes the heire in the quartered rote, must presente the paternall rote, yet in princes, who have the Lawe at liberty in those pointe, yt is often times used otherwise. and they use to presente the armes of theire provinces or kingdomes yea before the noutheres, for in martiall affaires Pars maior vincit meliorem and therefore kinge Edward the thirde claiminge Fraunce, and naminge himselfe kinge thereof, for it was the more stronger kingdome, although it came by the mother side, yet he presenteth the rote in the principall parte of his escotheon the like (as yt said) is used by kinge Henry, the, who first presenteth the rote of Castile beinge pars maior, or greatest pointe of his. before his paternall rote, for of late yeares his Ancestors were obscure and of no ~~antiquity or~~ honor, but on of them beinge a knight maried with the daughter of the Conte of Lasburge, which was the first honor that his house accepted: and after ward to the rest by matrymonye., Wherefore he shilde rather have presented the armes of Lasburge beinge the first tipe of honor, then diverse others wch he presenteth in his arthument. / looke for this in Monster folio

Others saye that kinge Edward the thirde first pretended the armes of England, but beinge forced to recover his right of Fraunce by armes, and seekinge aide of the lowe countreymen was made by them that they were of the house of Burgundye and ~~therefore~~ owed fealty to the kinge of Fraunce, and therefore it was not lawfull for them without periury and staining theire honor, to bere armes against the kinge of Fraunce, where upon the said kinge Edward alteringe him selfe to be lawfull kinge of Fraunce gave the armes thereof in the chefe parte of his escotheon,

Holinshed fo: 905

And then as is said he had theme wide.

Others saye that France is the more and most worthie kingdome of Europe, & most antient, and in that respecte the armes is preferred,

But see in Laries nobylytie a good reason folio wch is ~~that~~ that the two lions in the armes which the kinghe of England beareth paternally is the armes of William Conqueror which he bare as Duke of Normandy, the said Dutchy also havinge bin in his ancestors but a fewe descents before, and afterward kinge Henry the second matrimyed with the heire of Guion geavinge the third Lion of like colour and forme, for the better forme the same was annexed in pale under the other two Lions, all wch armes are the armes of Normandy & Guien, beinge but Dutchyes and not belonginge to any kingdome but when Edward the third was lawfull Inheritour of a kingdome and of France he preferred the armes thereof (beinge the armes of a kingdome) before his paternall rote beinge but the armes of a dukedome, for he never gave the armes of England, but the armes of Normandy, neyther is there that I knowe of any armes yeerly belonginge to England, But the same realme havinge bene subiect to diverse conquest, and also descended to sundry families, as Brute, Lerine Colus, after the lyne of Brute extinguished, and the Dukes of Corne wall then the conquest of the Romans, then the Saxons, and emonge them to divse kingdomes, and lastly to the kinge of west Saxons, then ye Danes, and lastly William the Conqueror. It seemeth, that eche of those haveskille geven sundry rotes, accordinge to theire owne houses, so that there was no certen rote preserved for the kingdome, as hath ben for France, wch armes ~~hath~~ hath ben preserved and kept in ou blud and lynage, since the tyme of

And this maye seeme a good reason why the armes of France are preferred before the armes of England, and the like reason for the armes of the kingdome of Castile before the armes of the house Anspurge or any of Inferior rotes.

But 14 Edwardi tertij statut per se that the realme of England shold not be subiect to the realme of frannce, allso it is especially to be noted, that from the tyme of the conquest onto the tyme of Edward the thirde kinge of frannce there was no Duke in England, but those that were Dukedomes before, were brought to be Erldomes as cornwall &c. And Edwarde the third renued some, and created others to be Dukedomes and it semeth the same was done by William the Conqueroune, for that he him selfe beinge by disscente but a duke, and beinge the armes of a duke only, wold not haue any of his subiecte to be of equall degree with himselfe within his realme, for other wise I see no resonne why he shold haue suppressed the ancient Dukedomes & brought them to be Erldomes.

William Conqueror gave paternally two lions and Henry ye Plantagenett gave one, wch here were added, yet two first were given as Duke of Normandie, yet last as Earle of Angeou wch both were holden of ye Crowne of ffrannce, and yey his subiecte and Homagers and therefore yey ffrance subiecte not old wch be preferred before yere sudaigns Dukes and therefore yey Duke of ffrannce yat yey pryminence, for yat Lyons were not Dukes of England but of ffrannce /

Soe likewise may yond be said yt ye kinge Assignement yere England yat yey pryminence before his paternall Duke beyond Scotland was Homager to England

Allsynge yey Spanish kinge giveth yi yey rydge Corner yey armes of Castile, yat giveth yey armes of Austrie, beinge his paternall Duke yder all yi a Soueryen of present

Yey kinges of England had not peculiar Coate, to yere armes but yey Coates of yere blood and yey small families gave severall Coates, till yond of late h: 7: for yey Britaines relinquished sudry yeuse of Normandye two lyons, yey Danes yere armes, yey yey yere quartered ffrannce yi Plantagenett, 3 lyons. Edward 7: yere the sode his paternall Coate of Tudor and gave yey armes of England only and his issue after him

Denbrok

A petitione to the Queenes Matie his counsell in the Marches of Wales, in the name and on the behaulfe of the Inhabitaunte of the Sawe countie of Denbroke for a reformacon to be had touchyng diverse abuses of stealing, marking and killinge of sheepe practised more of late then heretofore within the said countie, Prayeng that commissions may be addressed out of this honorable Counsel for reformeinge thereof, as in tymes past it hathe been used.

Yt appeareth the said countie and Shire of Denbroke is for the most parte champion and open without enclosures, and that the use of most of the Shepe maisters is, to let their sheepe roame in common with other their neighbours sheepe all the winter tyme, from Michaelmas tyll May: and that most commonly without hire or howsinge them, havinge noe intente to come by their owne againe, but at May by the cart marke of their sheepe, at which tyme they use to travell about the country, and to gather together so many as they came since on their waste, and bringe them home to their howses which they use to set forth at that tyme of the yeare, diverse evill meaninge people have used of late yeares, of a false minde and wicked intend, to have an keepe for them selves diverse and many ewe markes, and to colour the same, they use to geve and bestowe upon their children, kynsfolke and other their servante in howsehold, certen lambes on sheepe, and to marke the same with some new and severall ewe marke for ever of them, other sonnge to keepe sheepe in playne or marshelle will leave the same sheepe on the Quenes marke, or perry ment, by which meanes and other like colour, one man will have in his howse ye sheepe V or vi markes, some viij or x and some more, by meanes whereof when their sheepe hath been runninge abroad all the winter, a man some evill disposed person when they go to gather their sheepe, by the ewe marke, they take and gather so many of other mennes sheepe as they finde, out any of their markes: so that there is but few sheepe but that an evill disposed man may fitt to some of his marke or perry ment, which thinge is become of late the colour and occasione of great theft in the country, and also by the meanes afore said many markes are growen to be so like the one to the other, and of such small difference, that there arisith muche strife betwene neighbours, and muche perjury often tymes comitted in triall of sheepe by the ewe marke.

Wherefore it pleaseth your Matie to geve order by Commission to be directed to the Shereffe, Justices of Peace of the said countie, or any two of them, from this court to call before them all such psons as doth keepe or finde other to keepe more ewe markes then one in any one of their howses, farmes, fordes, or cotes, and to cause them within a reasonable no more ewe markes but on tyme by the said Justices to be ymytted to dismarke, and to use but one ear marke only for any one howse, farme, folde, or cott, and for diversitie of the sheepe or cattle of his children, servants, or other of his howsehold, to use a wooll marke or pitch marke only, which is and shall sufficient in such case; and such psons as shall refuse to obeye the said order and decree, to authorise the said Justices or any two of them, to bind them to appere before yo[ur] Ho[nor]: to answer and abyde such order as yo[ur] Honors shall thinke fit in that cause and the said Justices to certifie the effect of the whole matter ageinst the said day of their appearance.

2 Overseers in every Lyth

Also that certen honest psons from tyme to tyme be appointed by the said Justices as heretofore hath ben done by commission out of this court to be overseers in every lythe, and that noe sheepe be marked but in the presence and view of the said overseers, and other honest psons of the neighbourhood the said overseers, upon just occasion from tyme to tyme to be altered at the direction of the said Justices of the peace.

3 Instructions to argument the overseers first

And that noe psons singe, nitinge or killinge sheepe, doe kill any sheepe but in the view of the said overseers, or other honest neighbours, to be there unto required, and that of all sheepe that are killed to be sonde, the one eare to be left by the flesh, and the other by the skin: as hath be used heretofore.

4 Instructions to be observed

And that no psons be admitted to be sworne, or to kill healthes and to sell them againe: but such as be of honest name and fame, and that be bitten fee there unto by the said Justices of peace, or two of them in writing under their hands and seales, and that such as do otherwise to binde them to the Queenes ma[ie]st use, not to use the same any more, and if any offence after such bands taken that then upon complaint or notice thereof the said Justices to examine the cause; and to binde the offenders for their appearance before your Ho[nors]: to answer no that behalf, and to certifie such examinations and proffe, as he shall take forthwith that cause ageinst the day of appearance of the offender together with the said bands so taken.

Item that non lose the eull marke, or mopping of both eares, by the heed in sheep or other cattle, upon pain be lord of a Manor, where the same is lost or hath lost the same by put out of mind, but that in such places as the same hath been lost before time and not also ye heard: and non lose the mopping of ye eares nor the hole yet sittinge or other wise markinge of the stump of the eares, but such as of right may and have used the eull marke as afore said.

De sede Menevensi quadam antiqua.

Giraldus Cambrensis, in dialogo quem de sacerdotibus suis tituli sedis Menevensis archiepiscopalem dignitatem assertendam assumpsit composuit, ad hunc modum scriptum reliquit. Ad instantiam itaque Henrici Regis Britonum, missi sunt ab Eleutherio Episcopo Romano, qui quasi quartus decimus fuit a beato Petro, duo nobiles praedica-tores in Britanniam maiorem, Fugatius scilicet et Duvianus, qui fidem Christi per universam insulam a mari usque ad mare plantaverunt. Et iuxta Prosperiarum numerum, quas tempore gentilitatis habuerat insula, quinque Metropoleos, sunt olim, habuerat, et suffraganeas Ecclesias totidem subiectas habentes, ordine et numero competenti distinxerunt. Iuxta Conum enim Anacleti Episcopi Romani, sunt in Pontificatibus Romanorum gestis et imperi-alibus contineri, cuiusdam Galliarum Episcopi, Iuxta statum Gentilium ante Christi adventum, Britannia habuit Prosperias numero quinque, Britanniam primam, Britanniam secundam, Flaviam, Maximam, Valentiam: Prima dicta est occidentalis pars insulae, quia primum in illo Britones Brutto et Corineo duobus applicuerunt, eaque primo a Corineo et suis occupata est, et inhabitata. Britannia secunda, Cantia, quia secundo a Bruto et suis inhabitata fuerat. Tertia Flavia, hoc est Flava, quae dicitur et Mercia, quasi mercibus abundans, unde caput est London, Quarta Maximia i. Eboracia ab Imperatore Maximo dicta. Quinta Valentia, ab Imperatore Valente nuncupata, Albania, scilicet, quae nunc absque dicitur Scotia, sicque ordinatum a sancto Patricio praedicatore duobus fuerat, sed in occidentali insulae parte, quae et nunc adulterino vocabulo Wallia dicitur, proprie vero Cambria a Cambro Britti filio dicta, urbes Legionum Metropolis fuerat, duodecim suffraganeos habens.
Doroberna quae nunc Cantuaria dicitur a Dur Britannico, quod est aqua, quoniam aquis abundat, sic nuncupata, Metropolis ab australi Thamisis parte, duodecim suffraganeos habens, Londonia Metropolis duodecim suffraganeos habens. Eboracia quae nunc dicitur Eboracum Metropolis, duodecim suffraganeos habens. Et urbes quae nunc Sancti Andreae forsan dicitur, totidem suffraganeos habens, olim Albanactus unde et Albania dicta Prosperia, sed potius ab Albanacto Britti filio nuncupata. Cumque hoc ordine distincta, diuentis dominis et plurimis Britannia Ecclesia floruisset, supervenit gens Saxonica quae nunc Anglica dicitur, a Britonibus invitata, ut eis contra Pictos, et Scotos qui boreales Insulae partes occupaverant, Britonum stipendiis militaerent. Tandem vero tum viribus et numero crevissent, invito tum hostibus fodere, et ipsi quoque priores hostes effecti, iniis proditionibus Insulas sibi ad utrinque duas partes Insulae propulerunt, totamque terram Regionum quem et Anglicam postea notaverunt a natali suo Saxonica stirpe, quod Magna eorum Engelont notabatur. i. Angularis terra, Britanniam occupatam sibi nominantes, hetnon et Scotia partem non modicam destruentis Ecclesiae ritu gentilitatis, qui gentiles erant sedaverunt: Britonibus nihilominus Christi fidem in occidui Insulae finibus intentasse sedantibus.

The father God the holy ghost

First and last is God of might Alo Alp Lorde of light whose power in all is showne in whose knowledge all is known whose essence as the chiefest blisse in whose worke none shrinde amisse under all not debased not prowde above all placed within all not misluded without all not exsluded above all in all swayeth under all all upstayeth without all by comprisinge within all by sufficinge without all no where straynedd within all no where contenned under all not over warde over all not understaide mouinge all and moude of none plainge all thy place unknowne Turned hanginge never changest fraylyes straynge never rangest now neede now power eternall alterest thy state eternall thow wast art and shalte aye of thyne owne the onely staye

Sonne to father aye coequall with him ever consubstantiall fathers glorye fathers nature Creator made Creature when on flesh thow taokest on thee by that flesh redeemde were wee everlastinge and yet temporall yett by dyinge art Immortall heavy man and heavy God one Christe made of man God God to flesh not converted God by flesh not subverted great as God bemye yod dulye lesse then god bemye man trulye To in this neerre communion yod and man make an union and that all perish might noll beeam that in he was noll saive geeter and director mediator and protector Christ sysh baptisde by John Crucifide entombd in stone onte deade to hell descendede risen up to heaven ascendede Payde above the firmament by men Judgd geeves men Judgment

The increated holye spright unborne unmade yett god by right equall bothe to sonne and father nature from both doth gather not made lesse by maiestie but agreeth in qualitye how greate they so greate is hee such as hee such they tow bee what tyme they o tyme is hee Infinit they are all three father god his sonne begate his sonne god borne to the state the spirit of both proceedinge three in one not one exceedinge each of three is god all one not three gods butt only one in this god true god consisted three and one be are affirmed essence geeveth unitye person geeveth Trinitye in person none superior none greater none inferior Every one one for ever so fixt that none cann sever in itself never joined into other never cauned

This the faith Vniuersall without error greate or small this faith this faide I receaue to the better parte I cleaue

Deserving death I not dispaire in death for life shalbe my prayer God to please I nought pretende but the faith which I defende

By the Queene.

Trusty and well beloved we greete you well, And for consideration, the Lord President, and others our Counsell in our Marches of Wales, on our behalfe motinge, we will and require you forthwith upon receipte hereof to publish the sedule or tenor of proclamation herein inclosed by open proclamation in places conuenient within yor office, And after the publishinge thereof to assemble yor selves together and to put the same in execucion according to the direction set downe in the same, and after that you have taken notice thereof for yor owne instruction to fixe the same vpon a poste or table in some open place vsuall for such like seruice, To the ~~intent our subiects~~ thither resortinge may have access thereunto, and take notice thereof as the matter requireth, And to certifie from tyme to tyme yor doinges and proceedinges in execucion of the same ~~as thereby is required~~, As yor tender o^f seruice the Comon wealth of yor Countrey, and will for the contrarye answer at yor perilles, Geuen vnder our Signett at our Castle of Windsor the first daye of December 1594 the xxxvi^th yeare of our Raigne.

~~And her ma^tie Counsell in the marches of Wales.~~

Regina

To our trusty and wellbeloved the Sheriffe and Justices of peace of the Countye of Denbigh.

A proclamacion set forth by the Lorde President and Counsell in the principalitye and marches of Wales in her ma^ties name the xxvi^th daye of November in the xxxvi^th yeare of her ma^ties Raigne for the reformacion of sundry disordered ~~[illegible]~~ committed ~~[illegible]~~ and doone within the Limits of the commission of the saide Lorde President and Counsell.

The saide Lorde President and Counsell doe think it verye necessarye meeter and conuenient and in her ma^ties name doe straightly charge and commaunde, that the Justice of peace of eyte County, within the Limits of theire commission shall deuide themselves into allotments for the suppressing of the multitude of vnnecessary victualinge and typlinge houses throughe within Libertyes and other priuilege placed adjoyninge, Wherein no houses

no wise to suffer any person or persons wch dwelleth or doe dwelle in the ende of any cottages, Cownes, villages, or other remote places to take any such house, but rather in places convenient meete and necessary for that purpose, And hereof they have executed the same to make cer tificate to the saide Lorde President and Councell with the names of ever such person or persons whome they shall license to keepe any victualinge or tipplinge houses within on moneth next after the receipt of this proclamation, taking bandes for the true performance of the which to the keeper of a victualinge house appertayneth according to Statute in that case provided. For to those victualinge houses (as the saide Lorde President and Councell are informed) many vetrans Rogues Vagabondes Idle persons and such like malefactors doe resort are there kepte relieved, and maintayned to harboure Theeff and all other paines are nourished and increased /

Petty nouns

The saide Lorde President & Councell, doe also think it meete and convenient that the Statute against unlawfull retayninge, and the persons Retayned be put in execution in eth County within the limitt of this Commission to the intent there may be speedye reformation of the abuses ensuinge thereof.

Sheriffs Counte every fortnight

Furthermore the saide Lorde President & Councell, are enformed that the Sheriffes of the xii shires of Wales doe keepe Counte on'e fortnight at least time by reason of their office, which they ought not to doe, the usage whereof tendinge to the private benefit of the Sheriffe, c his officers hereby to the subjectes very greate charge necessary to be reformed, Requiring them, that from henceforth non be kepte but according to the lawes and Statutes of the Realme, ..

Names of disordered psons to be certified every quarter and bande for theire appance

The saide Lorde President and Councell, doe also think it meete and convenient that the Justices of the peace of every of the xii shires of Wales shall make certificate to the said Lorde Pre= sident and Councell every quarter of a yeare of the names of all disordered persons both men and women which lieve relieve without any honest trade to maintayne their particular Vocac tion, And such as cannot or shall refuse to yelde accompt of the same, to bynde them for appearance before the said Lorde President and Councell in ye[st] a peere to her ma[tie] wth sufficient Sureties upon ye[ir] dayes warninge to be geven in the parish th[e] meth[e] where they are dwellinge, or last abydinge, And the bandes so taken to rectify from tyme to tyme with all other disordres committed with in the Somyte and plottements of the said justices in every the said Countyes afoursaide, or any of them, And if they refuse so to do, to committe such as shall refuse to obeye to the Gaiole, there to remayne untill they shall conform them selves &c.

To know the full sea at Tenbie or Milford.

First knowe the age of the moone, wch multiplie by 48 (wch is the number of minutes, that the tide doth ouerwape or ouerrun in theire 24 houres) the ye debide the wole number multiplied by 60 (for ye moone minutes makes an houre) that of the Quotient ye doubt is as often as ye cannot, to the rest add 10 (wch is the houre that makes the full sea at the newe moone and full moone) and the rest shewe the houre and minute of the full sea that daie. As for example the eighte daie of Maie 1598 the age of the moone is 22 wch multiplie by 48 and it amounteth to 1056 wch being deuided by 60 is 17 and 40 minutes, onto wch add 10 and the doubt is the remainder is one a clocke and 40 minutes wch is the houre of the full sea that daie.

The springe tides are alwaies at the newe moone and full moone.

The Neape tide is at both quarters.

The eighte daie after newe and full moone the springe is at the eight and so the next after theirie quarter.

East and west moone at Tenbie maketh full sea southe and Northe moone lowe water.

The daie and instant of the newe and full moone is full sea at tenne a clocke and nine at twie a clocke by night and daie.

To frame the dayes of sitting in the Courtes of the High Commissioners at London.

First it is to be knowne, that as well the court of the Arches the Court of Audience, Prerogative, the Bishop of London's court, the Admiralty, Delegates, and other courtes of my Lords have certayne sitting dayes, wherein they are holden, wch they call dies Juridici which dayes do followe certayne feast dayes, michelmas, easter and whitsunde dayes doe appeare in a certayne rule in some booke to be found for the same purpose, for wch we must search and learne.

The high Commissions in London, for that the causes therein growe to be many, have devided themselves into ij Courtes the one holden at Lambeth before my Lo: Archbishop and the other before the Bishop of London at the Consistory in Paules.

The Archbishop's Court at Lambeth is holden every — thursday in the termes time and not else

The other Court holden at Paules before the Bishop of London for the High Commission, is called a sittinge the day after the small feast days of sittinge aforesaid. But if the same fourth day fall on thursday which is all waies, when the Arches day falleth upon a mondaye, then is the Bishop of Londons Court for the High Commission deferred till the next day following, for that the Archbishop's Court for his High commission is holden that day at Lambeth. And if the said first day be an observed holyday, wch all sainctes or on other such impediment, then is the same deferred, till the next worke day after. wch in Anno 1598 they sate not before my Lo: of London on the Innocents holyday

Being on Fryday xxbij November, which was the first daye after St ~~Martins~~ Martins feast, but deferred it till the morrowe after being Saturday xxbiij Novembris, and so they do for other like observed dayes

Also they sitt not upon Ascension daye, otherwise they observe fewe or none holydayes, saving sundayes which they duly observe.

A rule to know the sayd dayes in the Civill Courts and Admiralltie at London and upon what daye of the moneth every festivall daie is in everye Terme

Ascension daie

In this tearme, the first sittinge is always is kept the mondaie beinge the 20 daie after Easter, is set after the feasts here noted which shall not follow by course after Easter, but the like space being kept between other feasts, the rest of the law daies are kept the thirde daie after the Ascension, which is the last of this tearme, And if it happen that the Ascension daie doe come before anie of these feasts before called, then they are omitted for that yeere

And likewise, if anie of these daies come before the fifteene daie after Easter, those daies are allso omitted

Trinitie tearme

Trinitie sondaie
Corpus christi
Pentecost — 5 June
St Barnabe — 11 June St Botulph — 17 June St John — 24 June
St Paule — 30 June Trans: St Thomas — 7 July St Swithin — 15 July St Margett — 20 July St Anne — 26 July

Remember that the law daies of this tearme are changed by the meanes of Pentecost, and the first sittinge is holden the allwaies the first law daie after Trinitie sondaie, and the second law daie is holden the first daie after Corpus christi daie, except it fall on some daie above named, wch thaunteth sometyme And then the latter daie is kept after the second session, accompt fourte daies or there a bouts and then look wch is the next feast, and the first law daie after the said feast, shall be the third session the other law daies follow in order, but for many of them are kept, as for the tyme of the yeere is thought meete, And not generallie, that everie daie is called law daie that is not sondaie or holie daie, and that is the first daie being known of any sett daie in any tearme, the first or second daie following be sondaie then the fourte daie is kept — after the said holie daie or feast /

First of all, these daies are not altered, except they light on sondaie or some holie daie, And everie daie is called a law daie, unlesse it be sondaie or holie daie,

This Rule neuer faileth be it leape yeere or not but note that if the thirde ~~neere~~ moone after the Epiphanie hapen on the sundaie whether it be leape yeere or not the same shalbe Easter daye.

Reasons why the Lps: of Laugharne, Llanstephan, Cystetlowe, &c: Ketwed Llandovery &c wch were taken from Pembrookeshiere by the statute of 34 of H: 8: should be restored backe againe to Pembrookeshiere as the same was of Auncient tyme::

First for that the same was Aunciently parte of Pembrookeshiere, before the statute of 27: H: 8: and that it was likewise soe limitted by the sayd acte of parliament and after taken away by the meanes of Sr Thomas Jones when he was knight of the parliamente for Pembrokshire beinge a Carmartheneshire man by birth and living havinge nothinge in Pembrokshire but duringe his wiffes lifte onely, and therefore for favoure he bare to Carmarthenshire he assented and was the man that tooke the same from Pembrookeshire and did anex it to his owne native countye of Carmarthen, when as Pembrokeshiere had noe man in that parliament to speake for the Kingd or for the Kingd defence thereof, but trusted the said Sr Thomas Jones to deale for the same shiere whereby the same was lost before any man of the shiere knewe thereof

Carmarthenshier was farre larger then Pembrookeshier before the takinge awaye thereof and nowe it is well neere twise as large, and yet hath Pembrookeshiere in all services sethente ben equallye charged wth Carmarthenshiere and diverse tymes above it as it seemeth according to the first proportioninge of the abilitie of the shieres of Wales and as thoughe the same parte soe taken awaie were yet prell thereof, to the greate prejudice and over chardginge of Pembrookeshire....

And now sethens the same takinge awaye toueth the limittes of Carmarthenshire within v or vj moles of Haverfordwest a towne standinge in the mydest of Pembrokshire where all assises and quarter sessions and all other meetynges and assemblyes of the shire are kepte so that yt were more conveniente and ease for the ffreeholders and inhabitantes of that parte of Carmarthenshire soe taken awaie from Pembrookshire to ..

appeare at Haverfordwest then at Carmarthen or anye other towne in Carmarthenshire for the Inhabitantes of Egermont and others thereunto adioyninge beinge beinge nowe in Carmarthenshire have not ~~manye~~ above xviij moles ~~[illegible]~~ to anye of the townes of resorte in Pembrokeshire and yett have they ben forced to travell to the quarter sessions, Countie Courte and other assemblies xxvij moles to some townes in Carmarthenshire

By takynge awaie ~~anye~~ of these Lips from Pembrokeshire there are diverse parishe churches and parte of the parishe remaynynge still in Pembrokeshire and the other parte drawen to Carmarthenshire so that parishes are devided into both shires by takinge awaie these Lips the tynstables and churchwardens of som parish whose church is in Pembrokeshire, are sometymes dwellinge out of the shire, whereby her ma^ties service and other affaires of both the shieres are oftentymes hereby greatly hindred especially toshinge the relieife of maimed soldiers, and for relieife of the poore, wherof greate contenton hath and doth arise daiely, and as yett cannot be decided soe that manye of the Inhabitantes doe not paye anye thinge towardes these and other contributions in any of both shiers and some forced to paye in both shieres.

Milford havon standeth in Pembrokeshire whereby the Countrye is subiect to greate ~~p~~ill of Invasion & therefore fitter that that countie should be rather enlardged and strengthened then diminished and weakned that it might be the stronger to defend itselfe against any sodaine invasion and allthoughe these people dwell neerer Millford wth in the countye of Carmarthen then those of diverse partes of Pembrokshire doe, yett will they not be in that readynes for defence of the countrey as if they were ~~p~~t of ye shire, for that they are under the commandes & governement of the lieutenntes & Magistrates of Carmarthenshire and must tarye till ye rest of ye inhabitantes of Carmarthenshire be made redie to come to gether, wch is a greate delaye & maye be a hinderance to the service.

Pembrokeshiere by reasone that mylfoorde havon runneth upp throwe the middest thereof the same is devided and seperated therby into two ptes soe that if anye Enemyes shold land in the one side or pte thereof the other cannot speedilye or conveniently come to ye aide or restore of the other by reasone of the separation that is made by mylfoorde, but this ancient parte of Pembrokeshire is soe seated that it is redye and indifferent to come to the aide & relieife of eyther side of mylfoord and therefore the most fittest and commodious to be annexed to Pembrokeshiere as that parcell that is most redye and fittest to yeld aide and relieife a gainst any Enemye that should soe invade ye countrey.

Alsoe Pembrokeshire allthoughe it be not an Ilande yett hath it as much lande borderinge upon the sea coast and both sides of mylfoord havon and more then if the same weare an Iland by reasone of mylfoord havon that cometh throwe the middest thereof xij miles upp into the land, therefore most of the inhabitantes are mariners and sea faareingemen soe that the countrey yeldeth but small nomber of land soldiors to serve in forreign services or defence of the Countrey, yett the same hath allwaies ben forced to sett forthe as many men for lande services as anye other shire in Wales to the over greate burden and charge there of, and therefore it were more reasone it shoulde have the ancient members thereof restored to it self againe,, Alsoe by reason of mylfoord havon and other good harborowes one the sea coast aboute there happeneth manye extraordynarye eventes that putteth the Countrey to greate charges as of late the comeinge in of three hundred soldiers which were pressinge into Ireland for her ma^ties service, in Anno Domini 1597 and were winde driven into mylfoord and wanteinge virtualls the Countrey was forced to releeve them for the space of while they stayed for winde.

Also in Anno Domini 1597 ye the rominge thether of 75 spanish captives which weare relieved by the countrey for the space of xviij weeke to theire intolleerable charge

Also all or the most of the maymed soulders that com from Ireland doe lande in som porte there and by the Statute the Tresurers of that shire are forced to bestowe money one them to conduct them to their shires and such as are sick Impotent or dangerously maimed remaine oftentymes verie longe before they be able to depart the shire, and havinge nothinge the shire is forced to relieve them with meate money and apparell wch hath and still willbe very chargeable to the shire and therefore forced to beare and levye the greater some yearly towardes the relieve of maimed soldiers then ever occasions were not.

And oftentymes by resone of the saide havon and good harborowes there happeneth many pirates to be there apprehended and committed to the gaole of ye shire where they remaine longe before commission come for their tryall, and duringe their Imprisonment the countrey is forced to finde them in gaole wch oftentymes growth to great sommes, and hath bene levye burdens to soe smalle and poore a shiere and therefore greate resone that this countrey that is thus subiecte to these extraordinary charges more then all the other shieres of wales should have that pte or portione of it self restored home againe to make it ye more able to endure these burdens that other shieres are not soe subiect unto ...

Also by reson that they stand soe subiect to ye ill of Invasion they have ben in these late yeares of trouble ben forced to traine greater numbers of men then anye two shires in wales, and to arme them selves to ye utermost of their abilities wch other shires doe not; and thereby have greatly empovered themselves in wealth soe that of late yeres her maties subsidie in ye shire is detayed half in half and more of that the same was in former tyme, Allsoe Haverfordwest the thirdest & principalest Towne of the shiere is ex . . . and made a township of itselfe at the selfe same parliament and by the meanes of the same Sr Thomas Jones for favor he bare being a Welsheman bour to the Towne soe that it doth not contribute wth it in any charge whereas all other shires of wales have all the chiefe townes to aide them in all charges, and burden of service.

There is noe reasone alleged in the statute for the takinge awaye of these Lipes from Pembrokeshire as there is for diverse other Lipes mentioned in the same statute the cause was for that there was noe reasone to be alledged, but all resons was and are against it but it was yelded and consented it should be soe by the knight of Pembrokeshire, who was the chiefest motioner and prouver of the cause, m^y p^liament as is before declared.

Allsoe it appeareth by the said statute of 33: h: 8: for that the Lipes of Hope and St Asaffe were of auntient tyme p^tell of the countye of flinte & by 27: h: 8 allotted to Denbighe, therefore it was by the statute 33: h: 8: cap: 13: restored hitherwaine to be p^tell of flintshire as it was before, for that the takeinge therof from the Amtient shire did breede inconvenience, as this doth more all thinge considered.
And because parte of the parishe of Llawrenny was within flintshire and parte without which was ffoundes very inconvenienite therfore all the said parish together with the Lipes of Woodsdale, Treurfort and Oseley was made p^tente and p^tentill of flintshire by the said statute of 33: h: 8: which both resons serve to like effecte to reduce this parte soe taken awaye backe againe to Pembrokeshire for that the same was parte therof of auntiente tyme, and allsoe for that nowe by this takeinge awaye diverse parishes are parted into both shieres which breedethe much trouble and inconvenience,

Also by reson of the takinge of these Lyes from Pembroke shire and addinge to Carmarthenshire the same is growne so greate a shire that the Justices of assise there are much perplexed with multitude of busines in Carmarthen sessions as well of the gaole as of private suites so that they are forced to sitt oftentymes till iij or iv of the clock by candlelight and yett sometymes leave many matters undetermined to the greate trouble and hinderance of the inhabitante of Carmarthenshire, whereas in Pembrokeshire by reson it is so litle a shire they have not so much busines as they have tyme to spare; but sometymes they arise from the bench haveinge spent scarse an hour in a sittinge for wante of causes.

Also by takinge of that parte from Pembrokeshire the same is become so litle a shire that there is not such choise of gentlemen to be sonde to be sheriffes there, as in other shires, but the gentlemen are over prest by takinge the office upon them to often and the Justices of Assise have much ado to finde out sufficient men for the place.

Also by the takinge away of the said Lyes from Pembrokeshire the number of ffreholders in Pembrokeshire is much diminished so that there is scarse 400 ffreholders in the whole shire to serve at the greate Sessions, quarter sessions and all other tryalls and services, whereas there is within Carmarthenshire above 1500 ffreeholders to doe the service, so that by this meanes suites are much hindered and delayed in Pembrokeshire by reson of challenges, and the small number of ffreholders whose calls be are over much burdened in those services to their greate trouble & charge.

Allsoe by the takeinge awaye of these Lips from Pembrokeshire the Inhabitantes of Laugharne, Llanrhus, Pendine, Eggloskrmon, Llansadwrnen, and Llandawke, and forced to passe over a dangerous foorde or ferrye at Llanstyphan to come to Carmarthen to their perille and hindrage whereas before the takinge thereof they hadd noe suth trouble or perille to come to anye of the Townes of Pembrokeshire.

Also in Anno Domini 1597 xpd the rommige thether of 75 spanish captives which weare relected by the countrey for the space of xviij weeks to theire intolleerable charge

Also all or the most of the maymed souldiers that com from Irelande doe lande in som porte theare and by the Statute the Tresurers of that shire are forced to bestowe money one them to conduct them to their shires and such as are sick impotent or dangerouslye maimed remaine ofentymes verie longe before they be able to depart the shire, and hauinge nothinge the shire is forced to relieve them with meate money and apparell with hath and still willbe very chardgeable to the shire and therefore forced to beare and levye the greater some yearely towardes the relieife of maimed soldiers then ise occasions were not.

And ofentymes by resone of the saide havon and good harborowes there happeneth many pirates to be theare apprehended and comitted to the gaole of ye shire where they remaine longe before commission come for their tryall, and dureinge their imprisonm the countrey is forced to finde them an gaole with ofentymes growth to great sommes, and hath bene heavye burdens to soe smalle and poore a shiere and therefore greate resone that this countrey that is thus subiecte to these extraordinary chardges more then all the other shieres of wales shoald have that ayde or portion of it selfe restored home againe to make it ye more able to endure these burdens that other shieres are not soe subiect unto...

Also by reson that they stand soe subiect to ye ill of invasion they have ben in these late yeares of trouble ben forced to traine greater numbers of men then anye two shires in wales, and to arme them selves to ye uttermost of their abilities with other shires doe not, and thereby have greatly empovered themselves in wealth, soe that of late yeres her maties subsidie in ye shire is detayed half in half and more of that the same was in former tyme, Allsoe Haverfordwest the thirdest principallest Towne of the shiere is ex . . . and made a township of itselfe att the selfe same parliament and by the meanes of the same Sr Thomas Jones for favor he bare being a Welsheman bour to the Towne soe that it doth not contribute wth it in any charge wherus all other shires of wales have all the chiefe townes to aide them in all charges, and burden of service.

There is noe reasone alleged in the statute for the takinge away of these Lips from Pembrokeshire as there is for diverse other Lips mentioned in the same statute the cause was for that there was noe reasone to be alledged, but all resons was and are against it but it was yelded and consented it should be soe by the knight of Pembrokeshire, who was the chiefe motioner and prosecuter of the cause in ye parliament as is before declared.

Allsoe it appeareth by the said statute of 33: h: 8: for that the Lips of Hope and St Asaffe were of ancient tome pcell of the countye of Flinte & by 27: h: 8 allotted to Denbighe, therefore it was by the statute 33: h: 8: cap: 13: reforced further againe to be pcell of Flintshire as it was before, for that the takeinge therof from the Ancient shire did breede inconvenience, as this doth more all thinge considered.
And because pparte of the parishe of Hawarden was within Flintshire and pparte without which was ffounde very inconvenienite therfore all the said parish together with the Lips of Woolsdale, Mecarsfort and Osley was made pparte and pcell of Flintshire by the said statute of 33: h: 8: which both resons serve to like effecte to reduce this pparte soe taken away backe againe to Pembrokeshire for that the same was parte therof of ancient tome, and allsoe for that nowe by this takeinge away diverse parishes are parted into both shieres which breedethe much trouble and inconvenience, Allsoe by reasone of the takinge of these Landes from Pembrokeshire and addinge to Carmarthenshire the same is growne soe greate a shire that the Justices of assise there are much pestered with multitude of business in Carmarthen sessions as well of the quoe as of private suites soe that they are forced to sitt ostentymes till ix or x of the clocke by candlelight and yett sometymes leave many matters undetermined to the greate troble and hinderance of the inhabitante of Carmarthenshire, wherias in Pembrokeshire by reasone it is soe litle a shire they hieve not soe much business as they have tyme to spare; but sometymes they arise from the benth havinge spent scarse an hour in sittinge for wante of causes.

Allsoe by takinge of that parte from Pembrokeshire the same is become soe litle a shire that there is not fith ffyfe of gentlemen to be found to be sheriffes there, as in other shieres, but the gentlemen are over prest by takinge the office upon them to often and the Justices of Assise have much ado to find out sufficient men for the place.

Allsoe by the takinge away of the said Landes from Pembrokeshire the number of ffreholders in Pembrokeshire is much diminished soe that nowe there is scarse 400 ffreholders in the whole shire to serve at the greate Sessions, quarter sessions and all other tryalls and services, wherias there is with in Carmarthenshire above 1500 ffreeholders to doe the service, soe that by this meanes suites are much hindered and delayed in Pembrokeshire by reasone of challenges, and the small number of ffreholders whose calling are over much burdened in those services to their greate troble & charge.

Allsoe by the takeinge away of these Lyes from Pembrokeshyre the Inhabitantes of Laugharne, Llanrhus, Pendine, Eggloskrymon, Llansadwrnen, and Llandawke, and forced to passe over a dangerous foorde or ferrye at Llanstyphan to come to Carmarthen to their perille and thirdge whereas before the takinge thereof they hadd noe such troble or perille to come to anye of the Townes of Pembrokeshire.

Quod quidem privilegium Honorius nonnullis Romanus Pontifex secundus confirmavit. Cuius tamen privilegio, Menevensis, et Herefordiensis Epi auditi non arguerunt, quare dictum Urbanum in Concilio Londinensi per Joheu Cremensem predicti Honorij a latere legatum condenerunt, et iniquæ molestaverunt. Unde Urbanus ad Honorium preda Romanum Pontificem appellavit. Cui quidem Anno Dni 1128 appellande facta (Menevensi et Herefordensi Epis citatis, presente Willmo Cantuariensi Archiepo) Romam se contulit, ubi supplicatione et querimonia factis) Jurisdictionem et possessionem Sowir, Ketweli, Kantrebythan, Estradyw et Urthenfield, quarum lis pottestata, et controversia mediante fuit ab Honorio et Romano conventu (suo privilegio confirmato) obtinuit, quem Honorius in illius gratiam literas salutatorias, Henrico Regi Anglie, et Willmo Cantuariensi Archiepo, illos rogando ac petendo scripsit. Urbanus etiam submonuit ut Anno sequenti Rome comparet, allegatur et respondit Epis Menevensi et Herefordiensi, quos in idem tempus citandos fore decrevit. In quorum absentia, ut statuto termino satisfaceret, Urbanus Anno sequenti Roma contempnit, in Honorius Sowir, Ketweli, Cantrebythan Estradyw et Urthenfield, (Consensu Episcoporum Archiepo et Cardinalium) et suis successoribus in perpetuo adiudicavit. Post tamen discessum Epus Menevensis in testibus suis Romam redijt. Quos tum prodivisset in festo Beate Lucie proxime ad comparendum Roma predictos Epos assignavit. Adveniente quidem tempore, mortuo Honorio, Urbanus Landavensis Epus semo ac morbo prevenitus literis suis Innocentio secundo Romano Pontifici transmissis) ut sibi indulgeat, humiliter supplicamus. Cum ipse petitio non solum annuit Innocentius, sed ut per tres annos domi conquiescere cum speciali gra sibi concessit. Quod tu Episcope Menevensis animadvertisset statuto tempore Romam contulit (missis ab Urbano tribus suis sacra= mentalibus) In cuius absentia Innocentius Episcopus Romanus, con contraversiam venerabilibus fratribus suis, W: Cantuariensi, T: Eboracensi, et Hugone Rotomagensi Archiepis, in regno Anglie pertractandam commisit. Quapropter Urbanus Christianus Ecclie Laudabeni primis acceptis, momentis nonnullis in Geliabi libro ab ipso ut dictum conscriptis) Romam an

Notes of the first Originall of Coyne

In the begynnynge of comon wealthes, when the people and the comodities of the Countreys encreased, some people wanted thynges which others had to spare, and thereupon necessitie and wante of these thynges first taught them to exchange one thynge for another

Beside the wante of necessaries aforesaid superfluitie of comodities wch could not longe endure wthout corruption caused exchange, and to seke thynges more durable, as to give, Butter, cheese Corne etc. for yron, steele, Copper Brasse, lead, and other like thynges of more menrainte

Afterwardes the carydge of those heavye mettells, and of wooll, cloth, and such like was found combersome to procure necessaries from farre off, & troblesome to keepe, for wante of roome, and therefore the myndes of men devised and desired those thynges (for theire severlye comodities) that were most durable, for contynuaunte, most lightest for carydge, and required leste roome to be kept in, and to kinde all the superfluitie of theire severlye encreasementes to those thynges

For this purposse (as for manye other good properties) as the fynes, gravis, apteste, to be parted with, leste detriment or losse etc. they found gold and silver to be the fyneste mettalls, Soe that all men of those westerne partes of the world fixed theire myndes thereon, and desired the same before all other thynges

At the first before the inventon of Coyne, they passed and barterd this gold and silver for other thynges from man to man by weight onelye, and the fynes beinge first tryed, and this in contynuaunce of tyme was found troblesome to weye by weightes, and examen the fynes of the mettall by tuch upon everye bargaine & contracte, wch caused more tyme to be spente in bargaines then could well be spared

For avoydinge of this trouble in wayenge and tothinge, Coynenge was first invented, that peces of gold and silver and brasse, should be devised of a certaine weighte and quantitie (the same first tryed to be pure mettell) and of this, money was first made, wch passed from hande to hande by tale onelye,

And to avoide fraude and falshodd both in the weighte and fynes, this Coynenge was committed to the charge of the Soveraigne prince of everie comon wealth (as beinge head thereof) whoe undertooke and is bounde to see the Coyne to be trittlye made both in weighte and fynes, and the offence herein by anye subiecte is made Crimen lese Maiestatis, and soe till this Daye emonge all the Nations of Europe it contynueth;

Coyne was devised in these partes of the world to be of Gold and Silver rather then of other metelles more necessarie for the use of men for fyve causes especially.

1 That it is most rare and estemed most pretiouse in this parte of the world

2 That it contynueth longest without Corruption

3 That it is lightest of carydge and leste cumberfome havynge regarde to the value thereof.

4 That it maye be devided into partes with leste detrimente or losse.

5 That of all other metalls it serveth to gilt and garnish a thynge moche estemed of the people.

Sythence the inventynge of Coyne practise of tyme and many inventon have devised manye thynges to be considered and worthe the knowledge.

Thynges most { lighte / litle / lastynge } are for the most parte rempted pretiouse next to thynges necessarie

The difference betweene the pownde tale and the pownde weight of Silver, viz:

That the pownde tale of silver containeth in it xx^ti^ by tale: and the pownde weight of silver containeth in it xij ounces in weight and in the beginnynge both these pownde tale and pownde weight of silver were all one reckonynge xx^ti^ to everye ounce, and xij ounces xx^ti^ vnce vnderstande ounces twelve penes, wch is xx^ti^

The weight of golde and silver viz:

That xij grouetes weight of silver fine make a farthinge fine, and ij farthinges fine silver an ob fine and ij ob fine silver a penye fine and xx^ti^ fine silver and ounce fine and xij oz fine silver a pownde weight fine. And likewise that xxx grauine weight of sterlinge silver make ij oz ster: and ij oz ster: an ob ster and ij ob ster a penye sterl: and xx^ti^ sterl: an oz sterl: and xij oz ster a pownde weight sterl and even so that xx grauines of fine golde make a carrett of fine golde and xxiiij carretts of fine golde make an oz of fine golde and xij oz of fine golde make a pownde weight of fine golde

The difference betweene fine silver and sterlinge silver viz:

That eleven ounces of fine silver and an ounce of alloye make a pownde weight sterlinge silver, and xij ounces fine silver without anie alloye make a pownde weight of fine silver and so by out silver is finer then sterlinge by one ounce in everie pownde weight

The proportion in value between golde & silver bigge

¶ That xij ounces of fine silver is valued worthe one ounce of fine gold, and xij ounces sterling silver valued worthe xxiij carrettes of gold fine and two carrettes of Allaye and thy ounce of fine silver, Ethelly appeareth to be worthe two carrettes of fine gold, and twye ounce sterling silver appeareth worthe two carrettes of gold of xxiij carrettes fine the ounce, And so xij ounces of eyt one be it fine or be it sterling silver is worthe but one ounce of Geolde

The use of gold and silver bigge

¶ That valiant made and polliticye found them the necessyte to value bellthynges by, whereupon the ryghtynge between man and man that was in the beginnynge, of one thynge for an other fell awaye, and pollitie devise cherie thynge to be valued to certeine proportion of fine silver and fine gold, allwaies proportionynge his before twelve partes of fine silver to be in value but one of fine Gold,

The first coynage of gold and silver bigge:

¶ That thereupon edwyd state fundenige it was to troufull, to paye and tryye gold and silver ~ legrettes out for everye thynge bought & sold, thy made themselves (according to the proportion of fine gold and silver they had) coynes mountes of gold and silver, of appointed penies ~ standards, weights and values to be ever knowne, trueth and iust measures to value bellthynges by, but first let the first and till dyed afterwardes, because that the states had not fine gold and silver enough for the lost of their subiectes, And yett notwithstanding, and wisdome, that for therye out of Allaye unto thyre pound weight of fine silver coyned, they did likewise put two carrettes of Allaye to twye of thyre fine gold coyned But that allayed xij of thyre silver moreye Allayed was worthe but xij of thyre gold moreye allayed

The manyfyll buyynge of gold & silver bygge

That ye manyer toynyed onne of fine silver and toynyed tarrettes of fine gold be given for lawyf. untoynyed gold and silver offered to be sold as the same shall gold fine, and the seller to allowe the Buyer the Charges of the toynyedge

For their owne gaine

To bring their money into gaine in many place of the world, yeaght totheir great losse

To gaine and many pieces, and better meddle with their premised commodities

To bring their premised commodities and better bringe or cause worth into their Realme, but to their great losse and their owne subiects money

To hope and grounde pieces without feare or venture of sea

To doe greate feates Gaineinge preadiffe and yett to yeaghe woringe

Cittizens marchants and deceiff by the fuget

For le common — Wealth

To their bringe carryeinge away of their premised money

To fetch away their premised fair money with their owne, or any other premised base money

To take up premised base money and turne into their fine money and pay the deliuder with their owne, and gaine too

To yett upon recediff into their deliuder for le tyme till the warante money be deliuered, and paid again with their owne, and gaine too

And against a Comon Wealth or state

To yett a parte and sure tymefall their gaine that in plyeth money taken up by totheir great losse and harme, and so to other trauaile for their gaine

For their own gain

To understand together the restitution their money misplaced out of their hands or buying of wards will be more profitable to the merchants

To know certainly whether land which the undertaken gain upon their wards they buy land sell

To lyke the restitution upon two premises subiectes of restitution taken up money by exchange together the gain misplace it to profitte or noo

To render out the premises treasure out of his realme, whose subiectes bringe more wares into their realme, then they carry out of his realme

For the Comon wealthe

Yet the state of merchants, debated by both houses

To make that realme gain of all other realmes whose subiectes lyke must be their owne commodities, and the yearly their over plus into the world, and both corrupte that restitute otherwise, and albe their old store of treasure upon the exchange

To put the realmes and premises that lose not to their comon wealthe when their understande wealthe is sure, and let greate houses of our Countrye consorte together be to rule exchange that when they will delivered they will restaure in another place albeit the standard of their mynt of the premises money delivered and where they will takes they will paie the same in another place under the standard of the mynte of the premises money taken up

And against the comon wealthe

To keepe p[r]ents from landinge bringe in stranges subsidies, or loans upon their money as longe as they misplace it not

For the Kynge and the Commonwealthe

To make the staple of money rynne hither wherre the riche people will have it to be brought and payed for it

To punnyshe the poore peple of this provision of money that Kynge Henry the viij^th^ made upon the twenty bought pieces will serve it and to bye for it

To ymprynte there wede of money that tarryeth the selling of Kynge Henry viij in every Countrey untill they may rome to the price they woulde have for them

To take up money to engrosse the Comodities wherr yet not rome, or rightes they have shut store to bring the whole trade of that comodities into Henry Englande, that they may sell the more bought and the olde store at Henry pleasure

Yet the feates of mr thomas Lestrange by epithange

For the Commonwealthe

To gett readyng money to bye bryg kynge that is offered bryg kynge offaye for any money

To compelle readie money to gett bryg offered bargained out of the offered lands and set by out biddynge the other offentymes they det raise the price of marte

Against the Commonwealthe

To plaine justice bryg warte they tarryed into bryg other Countrey by settynge them let that value his the money that bought them was then let by doth bryg in the Countrey, tho the other they be tarried

Rules for measuring of sawed timber Glasse and such like superfices by the foote square

In measuringe broade Glasse as by the foote you must allowe two sortes of inches the one called the inch square the other an inche of twelve, which is one inch broade of the length of the foote.

Of the inches square there goeth 134 to the foote
Of inches of twelve twelve onlye maketh a foote

The square inches of superfluage above a foote of the breeth of a horse multiplied by the number of feete of the length of the horse produceth inches of twelve whereof twelve maketh a foote.

Example

A Blocke of 10 horses long 8 foote broade 15 inches

These inches being the superfluage of the foote in breeth (being 15 inches broade) multiplied by 8 the length of the horse produceth 24 which maketh two foote which being added to the 8 foote of horse maketh the horse 10 foote which being multiplied by 10 being the number of the horses sheweth that Block to be a 100 foote
